Boeing, Destini Prima to Explore Service and Support Opportunities for AH-6i Helicopters

LANGKAWI, Malaysia, March 20, 2015 – Boeing [NYSE: BA] and Destini Prima Sdn Bhd, a maintenance, repair and overhaul (MRO) supplier for aviation safety equipment, today signed an agreement to explore potential opportunities for Destini Prima to provide services and support for Boeing’s AH-6i helicopter.

Boeing’s AH-6i, a light attack/reconnaissance helicopter, is currently under consideration by the Malaysian government to fulfill the country’s attack helicopter requirement.

Under the agreement, the two companies will discuss opportunities for Destini Prima to expand its current expertise in aviation safety MRO to provide services and support for the aircraft, such as component maintenance.

“Exploring the possibilities for Destini Prima to build on its current services portfolio can not only benefit Destini Prima’s business but also is consistent with Boeing’s aims to help expand opportunities throughout Malaysia’s aerospace and defense industry,” said Jim Armington, East Asia & Pacific International Business Development Vice President, Boeing Defense, Space & Security.

“We are delighted to cooperate with Boeing to identify efficient and effective support solutions for the AH-6i helicopter and expand our aircraft-support capabilities” said Chief Executive Officer of Destini Prima, Tunku Johan Mansur.
